

Allusions

Write an allusion appropriate for each scenario.

1)

Richie has become the talk of the town after his fabulous success last week. Friends and relatives have been visiting; and congratulatory calls, messages, and emails have been pouring in. While it must be greatly satisfying for the young artist to be repeatedly told by everyone around that he's made his family, friends, and country proud by winning, he is in no mood to stop

Preview

Become a member to unlock unrestricted access to both printable and online worksheets.

www.tutoringhour.com

2)

than those who didn't sport any suits or jackets. It's exciting to learn more about "enclothed cognition," or the influence of our clothes on the way we think, feel, and behave. Needless to say, people always form their opinions about us based on our clothes.

---

---