

Blue Skies and Bluebirds

Taylor and her dad sat on the grass. They were in the park. Today, they would be birdwatching. Taylor looked for birds in the trees.

Dad showed Taylor how to look at the tree limbs. Together, they looked from tree to tree.

"If you look toward that tall tree, you'll see a family of birds in a nest," Dad said pointing to a tree.

Taylor followed Dad's gaze to the tall tree. A mother robin sat in a nest. Three baby birds snuggled around her.

"Aw, they're so cute!" she said. As she turned, another bird caught her eye. Taylor gasped, "It's a family of bluebirds!"

The birds were bright and blue.

A loud noise came from nearby. The birds flew away.

"Come back soon!" Taylor called to them.

Taylor loved birdwatching. She wanted to come again.

- Katie Clark

Blue Skies and Bluebirds

1) What are Taylor and her dad doing in the park?

2) What types of birds did Taylor see?

3) What scared the birds away?

4) Why do you think Taylor liked birdwatching?

5) What kinds of birds have you seen?
