

Up a Tree

Jack is in the park. He sees a cat in a tree. The cat is on a high branch at the top of the tree. It meows and meows. Jack wants to help the cat, but he does not know how. Can he climb the tree? What can he do to help? Jack has an idea.

The cat meows at Jack. Jack lifts the cat from the branch. He cradles the cat securely against his chest. Then, he climbs down.

The cat leaps from his arms and rubs against his legs. Then, the cat rubs against the man's legs too. The cat runs away happily.

Jack thanks the man with the ladder, and the man pats Jack's shoulder. They make a good team.
