The Chilkoot and White Pass Trails

Prospectors from around the world converged on the ports of Seattle and San Francisco, and they faced two grueling trails to reach the Klondike. The Chilkoot Trail and the White Pass Trail were both treacherous paths through rugged mountains. Travelers carried heavy loads of supplies, sometimes making numerous trips to transport everything they needed to survive the harsh conditions of the Klondike.

Boomtown of Dawson City

The ultimate destination for most prospectors was Dawson City, located at the confluence of the Klondike and Yukon Rivers. In a short time, Dawson City transformed from a remote outpost into a bustling boomtown with saloons, hotels, and businesses catering to the needs and desires of the fortune seekers. It was a
